What are Endorsed Qualifications?

Endorsed qualifications refer to educational and training certifications that have received official recognition and approval from reputable organisations or institutions within a particular industry or field. Unlike accredited qualifications which are authorised by regulatory bodies, endorsed qualifications are typically recognised and supported by industry experts, professional associations, or other respected entities. Endorsement signifies that the qualification meets high standards of quality, relevance, and applicability to the respective industry or profession. These qualifications undergo rigorous review processes to ensure they align with current industry trends, best practices, and the evolving needs of learners and employers. Endorsed qualifications provide assurance to learners, employers, and educational institutions of their credibility, value, and suitability for advancing careers or further academic pursuits

At The Real Consultancy Company, we have collaborated with Export Unlocked to craft an international trade qualification that intricately caters to the needs of learners and the demands of import and export sector. The qualification has been meticulously developed to align with the requirements of the workplace, fostering talent management and succession planning for employers while facilitating career advancement and progression for the learner.

Our endorsed qualifications undergo continuous scrutiny to ensure their relevance and suitability in the dynamic landscape of the modern workplace, allowing us to swiftly adapt to industry needs and meet the expectations of learner.
